Management 3.0

Empowering workers and satisfying customers is crucial, but these are not concrete activities. How can you take a concrete approach to these tasks on a daily basis? These are crucial areas that managers and everyone else must master. Most organisational problems are in fact management problems. And management is too important to leave to managers alone. Jurgen Appelo's programme takes a disruptive and thought-provoking approach to this, offering simple practices that are designed to achieve one goal: making ALL the stakeholders happy. The programme addresses 3 underlying principles: how to engage people, improve work and satisfy customers.
