

THE BIG SELF TEST

How do you feel when you realise you have made a mistake? And how do you deal with other people's mistake the self test now and find out which type of mistake maker you are!

TO THE OFFICE

e-learning

Error culture: Learning to fail happily

Learn from your mistakes – that's easy enough to say. On the job, however, the reality is usually quite different: We often experience our mistakes as embarrassing no-goes and would rather shift the blame elsewhere. Yet this kind of destructive error culture is toxic for the working environment and hinders important learning processes. This e-learning shows you how you can learn to fail (more) comfortably!

Group of participants: For all who wants to deal more constructively with their own mistakes and those of others.

Duration: approx. 1 hour

Language: 💻 🗮

Learning objectives

- ✓ Understand mistakes as opportunities for development.
- Deal with mistakes in a more constructive way.
- Know and avoid typical mistakes.

Contents

How we can avoid typical ways of thinking about mistakes.

Why an honest approach to mistakes pays off.

To what extent a positive error culture enhances creativity, productivity and commitment.

